The Coaching You Need

Success in today's competitive environment requires the very best in skill and commitment. In HR, it is sometimes difficult to find the hands-on support and training we need to help us rapidly improve our capability and the impact we have on our organizations. Often in small- to mid-sized organizations, HR managers are left alone, with great potential and commitment, but limited experience. Even in the largest organizations, or for the most seasoned professionals, having a “brain-trust” that understands your needs can be invaluable. We can help.

With On Song HR Coaching, you will

- Increase your professional value and marketability
- Make HR a strategic imperative
- Set yourself apart in your profession
- Become an effective coach and mentor
- And much more...

“Often in small- to mid-sized organizations, HR managers are left alone with great potential and commitment, but limited experience.”

What People are Saying...

“The difference will be measurable, the growth of both the business and HR leaders will be remarkable. There is no greater investment that could be made for an HR leader responsible for accelerating business growth through people, than coaching from On Song... mark my word.”

– Steven Lindsay, Senior Vice President, Health Equity, Inc.

“Dave Russell is a visionary leader and consultant who provides a business perspective to people-related challenges. On Song offers an insightful and fresh perspective and has been a valuable sounding board and resource over the years.... [Dave] has a knack for helping clients find innovative and creative solutions to difficult problems. I would recommend them to anyone.”

– Jeff Weber, Vice President, People, The Generations Network

“People who have coaches will be the norm. Other people won't get promoted.”

Jack Welch CEO, General Electric
